CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

SENATE.

FRIDAY, January 8, 1802.

DEBATE

On Mr. Breckenridge's motion to repeal the act passed last session for a new organization of the Judiciary System.

Mr. Jackson, of Georgia. I rise with an impression of awe on the present question; for we multitudes on constitutional ground, which should not be lightly touched on, nor too hastily decided. Every step we take ought to be well examined, and our minds convinced before we give that vote which cannot be recalled, and which will fix a principle on legislative construction, which perhaps will prevail as long as we remain a nation.

In the early stage of this discussion, I had almost determined to say nothing, and am at present determined not to say much; but a justification of the vote I shall give, has impelled me to offer my reasons for it to the State I represent; and I have made up my mind decidedly, to vote for the resolution before you, if I cannot be otherwise convinced.

I conceive, that as this subject requires from us a legislative construction, that construction may as well, and indeed better, be now made; there will undoubtedly hereafter be a clashing of powers. I therefore, think it is much better to decide it now, when the injury is less, than to suffer it to take root until it shall exert a different and more violent decision than that of a deliberative body.

The reasons for the resolution have been so fully stated, and strongly enforced by the gentleman from Kentucky who moved it, as to the expediency and the burthen of the expences on the present system, I shall therefore say little about them.

The expences, however, of the judiciary establishment, I deem the least important consideration attached to the subject. Yet I do not agree with the gentleman who has spoken, that the expence is trifling. The gentleman from New York, had held up the insignificance of a cent a person, and had told us of Alfred's purse which no one dared to take away. Let that gentleman calculate twelve fowls to a family, and he will see that each family would pay twelve cents; a sum however insignificant to the pocket of that gentleman, that might furnish a comfortable meal to a poor family. With the gentleman from Kentucky, however, I contend that the principle is as much settled by one cent, as by a million. And this observation becomes incalculably dangerous if it is to be drawn into precedent on every new project or improper measure, that it costs but a cent a person. And as to the remarks about Alfred, I might retaliate upon the gentleman, and say, that at that day, 12 cents might have been a year's salary for a judge.

We have been asked, if we are afraid of having an army of judges. For myself I am more afraid of an army of judges under the patronage of the President, than of an army of soldiers. The former can do us more mischief. They may deprive us of our liberties, if attached to the executive, from their decisions; and from the tenure of office contended for, we cannot remove them; while the soldier, however he may act, is enlisted, or if enlisted, only enlisted for two years; whilst the judge is enlisted for life, for his salary cannot be taken from him. [See 2d division, 8 Sect. 18. Art. Constitution.] Sir, it is said these evils will not happen. But what security have we for the truth of the declaration? Have we not seen sedition laws? Have we not heard judges crying out through the land sedition, and asking those whose duties it was to enforce, is there no sedition here? It is true the Sedition law had expired with the last administration, and he trusted it would not exist or at least be acted on, under the virtuous Jefferson. But hereafter if it should exist, your judges under the cry of sedition and political heresy, may place half your citizens in irons. I thank God that no such law now exists, or is likely to exist. I thank God that we are not now under the influence of an intolérant clergy, as is evident from their abuse of the President; and that we are not under the dread of the patronage of judges, is manifest from their attack on the Secretary of State.—And I trust, that we shall long keep this patronage off, by not sanctioning the religious persecution of the clergy on the one hand, or the political violence of the judges on the other.

But I will forbear making any further remarks of this kind, and go into an examination of the constitutional grounds.

[General Jackson here quoted the 3d Art. 1st Sect. of the Constitution.] Here then are two tribunals. First, the Supreme court, the creature of the Constitution, the creature of the people; the other, the inferior jurisdictions, the creature of the legislature. And notwithstanding the play of gentlemen upon the words shall and may, they are in meaning essentially different. The word shall applied to the supreme court, is imperative and commanding, while the word may, applied to the inferior courts, is discretionary, and leaves to the legislature a collection to act or not to act as it sees fit.

Again, why are the peculiar and exclusive powers of the supreme court designated in the following section of the Constitution, but because the Constitution considered, that tribunal is absolutely established; while it viewed the inferior tribunals as dependent upon the will of the legislature. And that this was the case was evident from the conduct of the Supreme court on the Penion act, which that court had some time since declared unconstitutional, and which declaration, he was convinced, would not have been hazarded by an inferior tribunal.

But does this conclusion rest on judicial power alone? Is it no where else found under other heads of constitutional power? You sir, under the legislative head of power, which is the first grant of power made by the Constitution.—For by the 8th section of the 1st article of the Constitution, after enumerating the powers of laying taxes, &c. it is declared in the 9th division thereof, "to extend to constitute tribunals inferior to the Supreme court." Here then is a legislative power given expressly to that body, without restriction or application to any other branch of the national government. Let those lawyers who hear me decide on the constitution of all grants or deeds, if two grants be made in the same deed, to two different powers or persons, if the first does not exclusively vest.

Is there a single argument, that can be assigned to oppose this construction of the Constitution? Do not the observations of gentlemen, who insist upon the permanent tenure of the judicial office, place the creature above its creator, man above his God, the model above its mechanic? A good mechanic when he constructs a machine, tries it; and if it does not succeed he either mends or throws it away. Is there not the same necessity for acting in the same way with the inferior tribunals of the judiciary, which is no other than the mechanic of the legislature.

But upon the principles of gentlemen the law which creates a judge cannot be touched.—The moment it is passed, it exists to the end of time. What is the implication of this doctrine? To alter or amend, what may greatly require alteration or amendment, it is necessary to return to the creator, and inquire what the creator is. My principle is that the creator is the people themselves; that very people of the United States whom the gentleman from New York had declared ought to be the guardians of, to save the people themselves from their greatest enemies; and to save whom from destroying themselves he had invoked this house. Good God said Mr Jackson, is it possible that I have heard such sentiments in this body? Rather should I have heard it sounded from the deserts of Turkey or the deserts of Siberia, than to have heard it uttered by an enlightened legislator of a free country, and on this floor.

But let us examine how we are to get at the creator. If the hon. gentleman will put us into the way of doing this with effect, I will abandon all my arguments for this motion. Look to the constitution, and see how it is to be amended? It can only be amended on the recommendation of two thirds of both houses; or on the application of two thirds of the states, a convention shall be called, who are to propose amendments, afterwards to be ratified by three fourths of the states.

There is first then required two thirds of both houses of Congress. Can this two thirds be found now, or is there any probability of its being found for 20 years to come, who will concur in making the necessary alterations in the judiciary system that are now, or may hereafter be required? On this subject there are as many opinions as there are persons on this floor. I have indeed never found two persons precisely agree. How then can we expect three fourths of the legislatures of the several states to agree when we cannot agree among ourselves. There is in fact no amendment which could reach the case, and exhibit to view all the requisite and necessary regulations for such an extent of country.—Such an attempt must form a volume, a constitution by itself, and after all fall short of the object.

I am clearly, therefore, of opinion that if the power to alter the judiciary system vests not here, it vests nowhere. It follows from the ideas of gentlemen, that we must submit to all the evils of the present system, though it should exhibit all the horrors of Inquisition.

But gentlemen say the United States embrace a vast extent of territory, from 1500 to 1700 miles in length. What is the inevitable deduction to be drawn from this fact? Why that a system which is to apply to this extent of country, embracing different laws, and different habits, will require frequent alteration; whereas, if we are tied down to a system of inferior tribunals once formed, we cannot even touch the plan of the judicial system of the little district of Columbia. Nor can we touch the inferior jurisdictions in the North-Western Territory, or in the Mississippi Territory, in both of which the systems were acknowledged to be adapted only to present circumstances, and in the last of which the rights of Georgia were implicated. It follows that whatever these rights may be, the system is sacred; and as to the Mississippi Territory, it grounded on this doctrine, notwithstanding the claim of Georgia, her jurisdiction is totally lost. To revert to the Sedition law. If the doctrine imparted now were true, then, the sedition law been incorporated as a system by itself an inferior tribunal, and officers been attached to it would have been perpetually ticked to the constitution; that law under which so many of our citizens had been imprisoned, for writings and speakings, and one among others for wishing that the wedding of a gun had been lodged in a certain president's part.

The gentleman had dwelt on the inconveniences and evils of the old system and had particularly condemned that part of it, which as he termed it, converted the judges into post-boys. But I will appeal to the gentleman if in England, where so much more business is done, there are more than 12 judges, and whether those judges do not ride the circuit. And why shall our judges not ride the circuit? Shall we have six judges sitting here to decide cases which require a knowledge of the laws, the habits, the state of property of the several states? Would not this knowledge be much better obtained by their riding the circuits, and in the states themselves making themselves acquainted with whatever relates to them, and the cases of appeals to come before them. It has been remarked by a celebrated writer on the English constitution, that one of the greatest political evils that could befall a people, was the existence of large judiciary bodies. To illustrate his ideas he had illustrated the Parliaments of France. At the time, which last session gave existence to fifteen new judges, continued, who could say by what number they would be limited. They might indeed soon become what they had been likened to an army of judges.

I do not wish to be severe in my remarks on the conduct of the late administration. I admire the private character of Mr. Adams. But I do believe the succession of his political acts tended ultimately to accumulate in, and attach all powers to a particular person or favorite family.

If I wished to bestow on Mr. Jefferson this mass of patronage, which I contend this horde of officers bestows, I should be in favor of the bill that it is now moved to repeal; but as a political person, I am no more for Thomas Jefferson than for John Adams. When he acts according to my opinion, right, I will support him; when wrong, oppose him; and I trust a majority on this floor will act in the same way.

A gentleman from Massachusetts has asked if suits will go on diminishing, and if the Millennium is so near at hand.—Sir, different opinions are held on this subject; for some suppose the Millennium to have arrived long since, and others that it may arrive, and others that it never will arrive; but there is one thing certain, that the more courts you have the greater temptation there is for litigation, and more suits or rather evils will flow from them. Law itself is but a necessary evil; for if mankind were perfect—were it not for their frailties and passions, there would be no occasion for it; and lawyers are a still greater evil, although he acknowledged to be a necessary one.—They seldom discourage litigious suitors and swarm in our courts; and there are here as well as in every other country, persons so fond of law and perfection, that rather than not be in courts at all, they would direct their lawyers, as I have been formerly told of a man who applied for advice, and was informed he had no ground of action to bring then a spite action. The state courts are open and content to meet of the inferior courts business, and it ought to be thrown into that channel as much as possible.

With respect to the usefulness of the additional judges created by the act of last session, it was perhaps unnecessary to add anything to what had been so fully observed by the gentleman from Kentucky. But I will state for the information of the Senate, that in the northern states of Georgia, South and North-Carolina, a ground of great litigation is removed, one who had originated at least two hundred and fifty suits. Miller and Co. had obtained a patent for a ginning machine. God knew where it came from, but I believe that neither of them invented it, so as to make those states tributary to them, and embroil them in disputes. South-Carolina had purchased the patent for fifty thousand dollars, and had there fore dried up this source of litigation in that state.

The recovery of British debts too was nearly over. This had been a fruitful source of litigation. Our citizens had been sued, and their late hard earnings of property had been seized to satisfy British demands, whilst their former property had been taken from them by British arms during the war.

I am surprised to hear the cry, that our liberties and the constitution are endangered, from the quarter from which it is now urged. When such remarks had been made by those gentlemen with whom I generally acted on former occasions, the instantaneous cry was against demagogues who by artfully inflaming the passions of the people against the government, wished to break down the Constitution.

A gentleman had talked about a victory mediated over the Constitution. Not by the President. Not by us. By whom then was it mediated? Was it by the house of representatives? Or was it by the people themselves—that same people whom we were to save from their greatest enemy, themselves? For my part, I believe in the mediation of no such victory. Sooner for my part than participate in it, by voting for this resolution, if I thought it would have such a tendency, I would cut out my hand, or cut out my tongue. I respect and love the Constitution, and my great wish is with father Paul, to cry out as respects it, ete perge-tus.

THURSDAY, January 10.
The Senate resumed the consideration of Mr. Breckenridge's motion, when messrs. White, Chipman, Wells, and Calhoun, delivered their sentiments against it.

Mr. Calhoun, at the close of his speech moved the substitution of a resolution for the appointment of a committee to enquire whether any, and what amendments are necessary to be made in the federal judiciary system.

The Vice-President declared that it was not in order to receive a new resolution, until the old one was disposed of.

Mr. Dayton then moved to amend the resolution of Mr. Breckenridge, by striking out "repealed," and inserting, "revived and amended."

On which amendment the yeas and nays were called; and were Yeas 13—Nays 15. As they were the same as on the main question, it is useless to state them.

The question was then taken on the original motion, for the repeal of the Judiciary System.

ciary Act of the last session, and carried—Years 15—Nays 13.
YEAS. Messrs. Anderson, Baldwin, Breckenridge, Brown, Cooke, Ellery, T.
Foster, Franklin, Jackson, Logan, S.
T. Mason, Nicholas, Stone, Sumpter, Wright.
NAYS. Messrs. Calhoun, Chipman Dayton, D. Foster, Hillhouse, Howard, Morris, J. Mason, Olcott, Sheaf, Tracy Wells and White.

The following Proposals of amendments to the Federal Constitution, are now before the legislature of Virginia.

WHEREAS there are defects in the Constitution of the United States, which from their operation as heretofore experienced, have excited well founded fears to the people and the states individually, that certain principles under the influence of the defects alluded to, were rapidly progressing, which were destructive of the liberty and happiness of our fellow citizens at large; and believing as we do, that a corrupt administration will at all times have it in their power to give that direction which will most probably fix upon the people a system of real oppression; in order effectually to quiet those fears, and to prune the Constitution of its exuberances which may ultimately lead to the establishment of aristocracy or monarchy; these considerations induce the legislature of Virginia, to suggest to the sister states, the propriety and necessity of amending the Federal compact. In a way, as to secure the inalienable rights which ought to attach to a republican form of government, they think the present the most proper time to commence this highly important work, whilst they have fresh in their recollection the extreme danger from which they have emerged; and it is further their opinion if these defects should not be now corrected, that the mildness of the present administration will be such as to lull the people into a state of security, which will render any affairs of this kind fruitless and abortive, and that no further future attempt can succeed until the people are forced into it by the had of oppression. They therefore take the liberty to propose the following amendments to the constitution aforesaid.

First.—That from and after the next presidential election, the President of the United States shall not be permitted to serve a longer period than for four years successively, and that he shall be ineligible until one complete term shall have intervened.

Secondly.—That the Senators of the United States shall in future be elected for three instead of six years, and that they shall be classified as heretofore so that one third may go out of office every year.

Thirdly.—That the treaty making power shall be so conferred, as to give to the house of representatives of the United States a complete control over all treaties, whenever their agency shall be required to carry such treaty into effect; and that all such treaties are to be considered as not ratified or binding upon the government, until the sanction of the house of representatives shall have been obtained.

Fourthly.—That in all future elections of President and Vice-President of the United States the characters voted for shall be particularly designated, by declaring which was voted for as President, which as Vice-President.

The executive of this state are hereby directed without delay, to transmit the foregoing amendments to the different state legislatures throughout the union, to invite their cordial co-operation.

BALTIMORE, January 21.
AMERICAN CONSULATE.

Havana, December 25, 1801.

CIRCULAR.

SIR,

By an order of the government of this Island, published this day, the admission of American, and all other foreign vessels into its ports, is prohibited from this date.

You will be pleased, sir, to give immediate publicity to this information, for the government of the merchants and traders of your district.

I remain, sir,

Your most obedient servant,
JOHN MORTON,
Consul of the United States.

The Collector of the Port of Baltimore.

J. Morton, American Consul at the Havana, in the postscript of letter to the collector of the port of Philadelphia, dated December 31, says, "since the foregoing, and from representations made by myself and the merchants of the place, the subject of admitting for a time those of our vessels which would be dispatched from the United States before this intelligence could be fully known, has been taken up by the government, and I have no doubt but that relief in the above cases (particularly if with provisions) will be extended by a partial or total permission to dispose of their cargoes."

A letter from an officer on board the United States frigate, Philadelphia, dated at Algieras the 30th October last, says, that they were taking on board the provisions which had been sent out for them, and that they should leave that place in two days with the convoy for Malaga, and from thence up the Mediterranean; and the frigate President was shortly to sail from Gibraltar for the United States.

RUMOR

States this morning that commodore Dale has been captured by a number of Tripolitan galleys, who boarded him in a calm, as he lay off their port. This account comes by the Norfolk packet, arrived this morning, the passengers of which received it from a vessel which went into Hampton Road as they came out. A circumstance so improbable should have "confirmation strong" before credit be placed in it.

Lexington, February 12.

On the night of the 1st. ult. a fire broke out in the house of Mr. George Hamilton on North Elkhorn, which entirely consumed the house, together with the principal part of the property it contained, consisting of household and kitchen furniture, amongst which were a desk, case of drawers, cupboard, an elegant clock, tables, chairs, bedsteads, and 230lbs of packed pork—Mr. Hamilton had gone to Pennsylvania and had not returned when this accident happened; and there was no person present except Mrs. Hamilton, a sick man, and a negro woman—the fire was first discovered in the room where the sick man lay—he died two days afterwards.

The Share-holders in the Kentucky Insurance Company, met at the house of Capt. John Pollethwait in the town of Lexington, on Saturday the 30th ult. (agreeable to a notification) and elected their officers for the present year; Mr.
William Morton was unanimously elected President, and Messrs. Stephen Wente, Thomas Hart, jun, John Jordan, jun, and Thomas Wallace Directors.

The President and Directors, have appointed John Bradford Cahier, and Wil-

TO THE PUBLIC.

HAVING in a preceding paper advertised to the public, that I had inoculated eight persons with the Vaccine or Cow-Pox matter, I now think it my duty to inform them of the result, and further progress of the Disease, by some future inoculations. Owing to the age of the matter, or not taking the proper steps in introducing it, only three of those first inoculated took the complaint, viz. Mr. Nicholas Lafon, my eldest daughter, and Mr. R. Rowan's boy; and the two latter were continually under my own immediate observation, and I can with pleasure assure my friends, that the operation and progress of the disease (if disease it may be called) equalled my most sanguine expectations, and has not left an earthly doubt on my mind, but that the system has fully underwent its effects and could I make the experiment (which is out of my power) I am confident they would resist every Variolous or Small-Pox contagion, by whatsoever means applied. The different fays & symptoms exactly corresponding with the description of its progress as laid down in Doct. Aikin's pamphlet. The boy of Mr. Rowan's slept and was continually with his brothers and sisters on whom no symptom of infection has made the least appearance. Neither of the two, lost one hour from either a molestation or labor, as to Mr. Lafon having not seen him since middle stage, of the complaint, will take the liberty to insert the following extract from his note to me dated

"LACOUT'S RUN, Jan. 24.

I am happy to inform you that from appearances my inoculation is like to have the desired effect equal to my expectation or wishes, my arm inflamed pre-sensibly in the beginning of the week and now appears to have gathered in a considerably large pustule round the orifice, I had a fever & heat &c."

On the 21st. inst. I vaccinated from the arms of those who had taken it, three or thers, viz.—my youngest daughter; a girl of Mr. Rowan's, and one of Col. Logan's—on the 22d. Mr. Henry Tunfill; and on the 23d a young man living with Mr. Rowan, all of whom appear to have taken it in the most pleasing manner.

I will here beg leave to insert the following extract of a letter written me by Doct. Moore, dated

"PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7th, 1801.
"I have just returned from a visit to "Doct. Cox, whose practice and expe"riments have been the most extensive in "the Vaccine and Small-Pox complaints
"—he is extremely sanguine; and con"vinced with his experiments. Amongst "other cases, he tells me of a family "where the lady took the Small-Pox in "the natural way—about the time of the "eruption with her, he (Doct. Cox) in"noculated her husband and child with "the vaccine, neither of whom had pre"viously had the Small-Pox—The child "was continually nursed by its mother, "and slept with her; the husband also "continually present. The vaccine soon "went on, and completed its course with "the father and child, whilst the Small-"Pox was progressing with the mother—
"The two former have since been inno"culated with the Small-Pox matter, "without producing any effect whatever "on the system. This, with a number of "other equally strong, tend to prove,
"without doubt, that Vaccine inocula"tion renders the system ever after in"capable of variolous contagion or inno"culation."

I will now take the liberty of informing such as may wish to take this mild disease, that in a few days I shall be prepared to inoculate any number.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS a bond for one hundred acres of land, lying on Four Mile waters, Clarke county, executed by Prettyman Merry to Itham Young, and assigned by said Young to me, has been fraudulently got from me by Pleasant Hardwick, and without any assignment from me—This is therefore to forewarn all persons from trading for said bond, and also I do hereby forewarn said Prettyman Merry from making a conveyance of said land to any other person but myself, as I claim the same as my property.

BY YESTERDAY'S MAIL.

RICHMOND, January 19.

Virginia Legislature.

The house of delegates, on yesterday resolved, that it is not expedient at present, to adopt the Maryland resolutions for amending the Federal constitution. And that the mode of choosing representatives to congress proposed by the States of Maryland and North Carolina, ought to be adopted, so far as it requires the elections to be by districts; but that it ought not to be binding on the States to retain one arrangement of districts for the space of ten years.

NORFOLK, January 15.

Capt. Taylor, in the Bucharis, from Havre-de-Grace, informs; that the first division of the fleet destined for the Cape failed from Brest on the second of November; the second division was to fail from Havre-de-Grace on the twentieth of November, they amounted to forty sail, including ships of war and transports—the whole number of troops to be sent to St. Domingo was said to be 50,000 men.

BALTIMORE, January 23.

IMPORTANT!

A gentleman belonging to a respectable mercantile house of Alexandria, now in this town, received a letter from his partner last night, dated the twenty-first inst. which says—

"I am sorry to inform you that TOPSAINT IS NO MORE. He has been caught by the blacks, and burnt alive."

A bill for repealing the judiciary act of the last session, was reported to the Senate of the United States on the twenty-second of January, by a committee appointed for that purpose.

It is a short act, and is confined to a repeal of the above act, and a restoration of the courts under the old system. It was read the first time, and ordered to be printed.

On the 26th, the bill was taken up and amended, and a motion made by Mr. Dayton to refer it to a select committee, to consider what change it may be expedient to make in the judiciary system of the U. S. and to make provision for the judges appointed under the act of last session, in case the said act be repealed. On the question of referring yeas 14 nays 16.

It was then moved that the bill be engrossed for the third reading, the question was taken by yeas and nays as follows, viz.

Yeas, Messrs. Anderson, Baldwin, Breckenridge, Brown, Colmer, E. F. Foster, Franklin, Jackson, Logan, S. T. Macon, Nicholas, Stone, Sumner, Wright, 15.

Nays, Messrs. Calhoun, Chipman, Dayton, D. Foster, Hillhouse, Howard, J. Macon, Morris, Ogden, Olcott, Rofs, Sheaf, Tracy, Wells, White, 15.

Whereupon the Vice President decided that the bill should go to the third reading.

On the 27th the bill was read the third time, and the blanks filled up; when Mr. Dayton re-moved his motion for referring it with a little variation; on the question the yeas and nays were as above, when the Vice-President gave his vote in favor of referring it—and it was referred to Messrs. Baldwin, Calhoun, Dayton, Anderson and Morris.

Gaz. Ed.

It appears that the report of the United States Frigate President, having been captured by the Tripolitans is unfounded.

hundred feet—

The first a large two story frame building, in which there is a large well builded store house and counting room, both large fire places of brick; the other part well calculated for a tavern, six well finished rooms plastered, and four large fire places; another room, thirty-six feet by twenty, and two fire places, and within five feet of the back room door, a brick lodging room, and a kitchen adjoining—

The balance of the building of brick, two stories high; with four houses, twenty feet square, rented out to different families; convenient to those are two small kitchens—there is a stable and small garden for the use of the large building. I have also nine acres of out lots in excellent order for cultivation—These buildings were first valued by a number of workmen at eight thousand dollars; and several useful additions have been made to them since—I will now give them extremely low, and give them clear of all incumbrance.

Another property I have in Mason county, one mile and three quarters from Limestone—two valuable overhot mills, in as high credit for manufacturing flour, as any in the state, and are now repairing, and almost done, so as to start in complete order when the season for grinding commences, with the best Burr and Alleany stones, rolling screens &c.—These mills in the season for grinding, can make forty barrels of flour every day that they are worked; and any person inclining to purchase, can be informed that the quality of the flour is superior to any that has been looked from Limestone. With this I will sell a valuable negro man, a good miller; the plantation of 140 acres, 200 apple trees, of fruit equal to any in the state, a fine clover and blue grass pasture and meadow, a small dwelling house and farm, with other out houses, cherry and peach orchard—the title indisputable; and I will give it clear of all incumbrance. For this property I have in two years paid nine thousand dollars.

I have also for sale, 700 acres of Military land, fourteen miles from Washington, North West of the Ohio river, with a very promising salt lick, supposed to have salt water, a small trial has been made, and some salt made by a Mr. Sherry.

I have also two small plantations in Bourbon, that I will sell—they are most fertile rate land.

I have patents for lands near Montgomery court house, of the first quality; eight thousand acres, the half of which I will sell at one third its value; the purchaser may have his choice; patented 17 years ago; entries very special.

Also the half of 600 acres of first quality, three miles from Fleming court house; old patents and special entries—on the same terms.

I have also one thousand acres for sale, adjoining lower MacKee's tract, level, but of inferior quality—for this I will take good horses at 6s per acre; the title undoubted.

I have also for sale about 300 acres, on Cedar creek, of Floyd's fork, with a never failing spring on it; a part rich land, and a part indifferent, within six miles of Mann's lick; this has excellent range and timber—for this I will take good salt at 12s per acre, if cash 9s per acre.

I have also for sale, six hundred acres, patented land, on Glover lick, eight miles from the Crab orchard—this I will take 3s per acre for in cash, or 4s 6d in horses.

If it will be an accommodation to those who may incline to purchase the mills, I will give in an excellent house woman, now living in Lexington.

I will also sell a good flock of hogs cattle, mares and colts, with the mills.

I will give such excellent bargains in all, or any of the aforesaid property, that any person inclining to purchase, may be well accommodated. The mills I will deliver up the tenth of March next, or if sooner required, on a little more advance, they shall be given up.

Money, good Merchandise, Negroes, and Horses, will be taken by indiments, as will best suit the purchaser.

Application to my son John Edwards, jun. in Bourbon, or to Mr. David S. Bro-drick, in Washington, or Mr. Enoch Smith, near Montgomery court house, or James Brown esq. in Lexington, for information and contracts with respect to the property, or to the subscriber, either in Bourbon or Washington, may be made.

Any of my creditors choosing to purchase, shall have on the lowest terms, as I am determined to sell.

I will sell 1000 barrels of flour, all to be delivered before the 15th of March next. And,

I have also one other plantation for sale, near Warlick, 233 acres cleared, and the title secure.

Any person purchasing the mills I will furnish with wheat at cash price, and will, if employed, engage to clear them in the fall of flour &c. this season, 2500 or 3000 dollars.

RESPECTFULLY informs the public, that he has removed his shop from the corner of Main and Cross streets, to the house formerly occupied by Mr. J.
Pew, opposite the Presbyterian meeting house, where he now lives, and intends carrying on his business as usual, he flatters himself from his unremitting attention to business, and the opportunity he has had for acquiring a general knowledge of it, fill to hold his share of the public esteem.

I wish to sell a quantity of

FLOUR.

To be delivered (at Mr. C. G. S. request) in the month of January, February, March and April; the Flour will be of a superior quality to what is generally made in this State, as it will all be manufactured at my own mill, there are several hundred barrels now at the landing. A credit will be given by the purchaser until the first of July next, by giving bond with approved security—I have BOATS to ship the flour, which will be sold with it.
